A Town Raising a Forest.

Brunswick, Me., is probably the only town in New England that is raising a forest of its own. The town owns a large common of about 1.000 acres, commonly known as the Plains. Several years ago Austin Cary, a Bowdoln college graduate, who is an expert in forestry, after looking the ground over decided that it would be an excellent place to start a forest, to be owned by

For several years the town appropriated $100 a year for the purpose, but last year only $50 was appropriated. The work, however, was carried on the same as before. Mr. Cary's report on the work done last year has just been made public. It states that there are now 20,000 white pine trees growing on the common, besides a blueberry plantation of some thirty acres.-Rochester Post-Express.

A Fatal Environment.

One by one the communistic societies established in the United States in the early years of the last century are dying out, the latest to disappear being the Harmony Society of Celibates at Economy, Pa., whose lands have just been sold to a Pittsburg syndicate for about $2,500,000, to be distributed among half a dozen surviving members and the heirs of dead members, if there are any, and there certainly cannot be many in direct descent. Communism evidently is not a working principle, at least when applied in spots surrounded by a world devoted to the rule of private property, and when celibacy is added ultimate destruction is made certain, whether communism is practicable or not.-Springfield Republican.

The death of Kenith, the half mythical king of Scotland, was one of the most remarkable is all history-that is, if it can consistently be called a his-Kenith had killed a son and brother o the warlike Fennella. She for revenge caused Wiltus, the most ingenious art ist of the time, to fashion an automatic death dealing machine, a wonderful statue filled with hidden springs, levers, etc. When finished and set up, this 'brazen image" was an admirable work of art. In its right hand it held a bash and in the left an apple of pure gold both set with diamonds and other preclous stones. To touch this apple was to dare death, it being so arranged that one guilty of such vandalism would be immediately riddled by poisoned ar rows shot from loopholes in the body of the statue. Kenith was invited to come and inspect the wonder, and king like and just as Fennella had hoped be tried to pluck the precious imitation fruit.
